Dear Keith Hill,

I have written to you before on this topic, but with Lord Mandelson wishing to push this folly forward i feel i have no option but to re-iterate.

disconnection

This was followed by the Digital Britain Report, published on 16 June 2009, which identified the need to encourage new sources of content and increased levels of media literacy, as well as how to tackle these subjects.

...the announcements such as the Virgin Media and

We do not envisage any general policy of terminating the accounts of infringers - it is very hard to see how this could be deemed proportionate except in the most extreme – and therefore probably criminal – cases.

We added account suspension to the list of possible technical measures which might be considered if our proposals to tackle unlawful file-sharing through notifications and legal action are not as successful as we hope. This is but one of a number of possible options on which we would seek advice from Ofcom – and others – if we decided to consider a third obligation on

Our ambition is to see the UK as the leading major economy for innovation, investment and quality in the digital and communications industries. The Digital Britain Report aims to secure four key conditions, namely: open markets; empowered and informed consumers and citizens; universal access to public service content; and a responsive regulatory framework. One work-agreed between authorities such as the MPAA, RIAA etc, whereby in film media, all so called "Cam" versions taken from premiere showings are completely unacceptable because they are primary causality to box office losses which is the first and highest level of adverse consequence to material recouping production and into desired profit thresholds, then we have DVD distribution release and then DVD hire shops such as Blockbusters and online marketplace.

these are established businesses at second and third level of profit loss but...

I suggest that an agreement in mediation to the file-sharing community that DVD's be left alone completely until 3 months after the point DVD releases are released to hire outlets which is not a DVD hire shop.

outweighing the deeds or wants of the few or one of Plato, something we don't see enough of these days since good comrade Blair left us nationally.

I am of course at your disposal should any more input from myself be required i can expand to concept, as too any Labour comrades of either house.

I see and am aware of a great deal and can think as such conveyed here to many spheres in fact i've earlier today emailed a member of the design

The lawyers letters we have seen are pretty uniform. They broadly state that:

- > they act for Client X who owns the copyright in work Y

Counsel for ACS stated at a hearing on 8 June 2009 that those individuals claiming they are rightsholders should ensure that the lawyers they instruct target the correct individuals treat them
